

ABSTRACT

A method, apparatus, and system to concurrently render independent images for display on one or more display devices. In an embodiment, a graphics-rendering engine concurrently renders independent images for display on multiple display devices. A time allocator arbitrates the concurrent use of the graphics-rendering engine between each independent image being rendered.

RECEIVED